Dredging Of Ship Channel Goes Ahead

Dredging work in the ship canal towards Sabine Pass, which will give Port Arthur a channel 30 feet deep to the gulf, is going ahead in fine shape the dredge Pensacola working on this part of the project, S. W. Clarke, U. S. government engineer in the Sabine district, said today.

The dredge George W. Carr is now working in the canal near Bland's Bend, working southward to the section starting at the Eastern Texas Electric company's plant, where another dredge recently completed dredging the canal out to the Texas Company terminals, Clarke said.

LLOYDS AGENTS SURVEY ISONZO

Second Conference Fails to Adopt Definite Plan

UNLOADING PROCEEDS

Owners Believed Waiting to Try Refloating Plan

When will the Sabine-Neches ship canal be open again to traffic? This question, admittedly the most important one confronting Sabine district shipping men since the canal was blocked by the burning and sinking of the Italian motorship Isonzo above the locks last Tuesday, remained unanswered late today.

A conference of steamship agents, marine insurance representatives, marine superintendents of Sabine district terminals, and Major J. L. Schley, U. S. government engineer in charge of the Galveston district, held in the Lakes-Sitkovich offices in the Deuster building before noon adjourned without a definite, official announcement as to what action will be taken to re-open the canal to traffic or when the blockade will be removed.

Return to Isonzo In the conference from 9 a. m. until 11 p. m., today were Major J. L. Schley, U. S. government engineer in charge of the Galveston district; Captain N. S. Sterner, Beaumont agent for the Lakes-Sitkovich steamship company; U. S. representative for the Italian owners of the Isonzo; W. E. Boers, of Galveston, Lloyds agents for this section and member of the insurance firm of Boers-Kenison and company, of Galveston; Thomas H. Fenlon, marine superintendent of the Magnolia Petroleum company's terminals; George N. Bliss, marine superintendent for the Gulf Refining company; and Captain Ventura, master of the Isonzo.

Upon adjournment of the conference, Major Schley, with Bliss and Sterner, left aboard the government engineer's yacht for the Isonzo, Captain Sterner and others in the conference followed up the canal a short time later in a launch. S. W. Clarke, government engineer in the Sabine district, was also at the Isonzo, leaving Port Arthur early today. Until he conferred with Major Schley, Clarke said he could give out nothing on the developments for clearing the canal.

Nothing Definite, Says Schley Word was passed in Port Arthur marine circles that definite decision upon action for getting the ship channel cleared to traffic is expected about noon today, but Major Schley declared before leaving for the Isonzo about 11 a. m., that he could not say definitely when the canal will be opened or what method will be used for clearing the wrecked motorship out of the channel. The district engineer indicated that the job is still in the hands of the owners and representatives of the Isonzo, and has not been taken over by the engineers. (Turn to Page 2, Column 1)

COLLAPSE OF LU'S MEN SEEN

Foreigners Mobilized on Border as Battle Rages

SHANGHAI, Sept. 19.—Foreigners in the settlements at Shanghai are safe and General Lung Yuan Hsiang's disorganized forces still hold out against government troops attacking the city.

Collapse of Lu's defense is considered imminent, however, and the Chi Li leaders already are planning to shift their forces northward against the Manchu threat at Shan Hai Kwan. The government considers the Chekiang revolt to be practically at an end following the revolt at Hang Chow yesterday which sent General La scurrying to Shanghai with his family and bodyguard.

Tachang Attacked Chi Hsien Yuan's artillery opened a heavy fire today against the village of Tachang, thereby virtually cutting the Chekiang communications on the Lieo Ho front. This is the last sector on which Lu's forces are holding out.

A heterogeneous little force of foreigners was mobilized along the barriers today.

Grant Pardon Petition Mailed To Governor Len Small Today

Letters From Thousands Flood Executive Offices Demanding Equal Justice For Rich and Poor Alike

CHICAGO, Sept. 19.—The pardon petition for Bernard Grant, penniless signor, backed up with other petitions signed by many thousands of persons demanding executive clemency, was mailed to Governor Small today by Attorney Thomas E. Swanson, seeking to save Grant from the gallows.

Swanson is making his appeal on the purely technical grounds while petitioners from all over the country demand "equality of justice between the rich and the poor."

Walter Krauser, who confessed to the killing of Patrolman Souders, and who implicated Grant, has made a sworn statement absolving Grant. Krauser declared that Grant was the victim of a conspiracy and a frameup. Krauser said he admitted Grant because he was advised if he turned state evidence he would get off with life sentence.

Grant Absolved "I did not know Bernard Grant and had never seen him until the time of our arrest and when some of my people took the stand, and said they had seen us together at anytime previous to our arrest they were swearing to an 'untruth,' Krauser's statement charges.

Women of the country by the thousands are rallying to Grant's aid. The great bulk of letters to Grant and to Swanson are from women.

IRON OUT FRANCHISE

Advances Date to Be Here Within 10-Day Period

C. H. Bossler, president of the Port Arthur Traction company, will be here from Dayton, Ohio, Monday to take a personal hand in the street car franchise situation. This word was received from Bossler this morning by the Chamber of Commerce traction committee, and notice was given Mayor Logan by telephone that the committee, accompanied by Bossler, would appear before the commission Monday morning.

Bossler had first telegraphed the committee that he would be in Port Arthur during the week of September 20 to negotiate for a franchise, but on request of the committee Bossler advanced his plans.

The ten-day period recently granted to the committee by the commission to reach a new agreement in the street car-jitney problem expires Monday. This new lease was granted by the commission just as it was preparing to read the jitney ordinances for the third time, and pass them.

A final agreement between the city and the traction company, or basis for agreement, is expected to be reached in the conference Monday morning.

GENERAL BOOSTS ARMORY PROJECT

National Guard Officer Addresses Plaza Crowd

"You people are fortunate to get bonds for your money put into an armory," Brigadier General J. F. Walters of the Texas National Guard told several hundred Port Arthurians assembled at the Plaza hotel last night. "In other places where we built armories, they didn't get bonds—they just shelled out."

The meeting at the Plaza was a reception in honor of Major General John A. Hulen and Brigadier General J. F. Walters, both speaking for the armory campaign now being conducted by Company D, 111th Engineers. The guardsmen, with their band, were present in full uniform.

Need of Guards

Both General Hulen and General Walters sketched the need for the national guard, as a part of the national defense scheme, and both pointed out the state of unpreparedness in which the United States found itself in 1917.

"There will never be another Camp Travis or Camp Bowie or Camp Logan," General Walters said. "Should there ever be another war, the boys won't be sent off to training camps, but will be trained right at home until ready to be sent to the mobilization camps. They will be trained, with three national guard armories as headquarters, by the reserve officers, thousands of them veterans of the great war, scattered over the country."

Has 132 Units

Major General Hulen, division commander of the 36th division, Texas National Guard, explained the organization of the national guard into 132 units over Texas.

"I have strong hopes of having the appropriation for armory rent doubled by the next legislature," General Hulen said, "and that will mean a much more revenue for you if it goes through. We have to build roads, develop our educational institutions and the state can't afford to build armories, but some day the state will be able to do more for the national guard."

Speakers preceding the two visitors were Captain P. T. Williams and Captain A. A. Nicholson, both stressing the need for an armory here. Mayor J. P. Logan was the last speaker, and he said the armory movement had the full backing of the city commission.

The band closed the meeting by playing the "Star Spangled Banner," switching to "Old Gray Mare" as the crowd filed out.

LLOYDS AGENTS

"It is impossible to say when reopening of the canal to traffic may be expected. Of course we know how long it would take to dredge a detour, but it has not been definitely decided to do this, and we do not know definitely what plan, or just what methods or means will be adopted. There are several plans that could be used, but I cannot discuss them now. We have ample authority to put any dredges to work at the job we can lay our hands on," Major Schley declared after the conference today.

Doubt that the lightering of the deck load of lumber and timber on the Isonzo would right the vessel or make it possible for tugs to remove the Isonzo from the ship channel was expressed by Major Schley. He refused to say whether or not this work was the agents and owners attempt to clear the channel, explaining that a statement regarding this phase of the situation would have to come from Captain Stortor. Work of getting the deck cargo off the Isonzo was started early Thursday by the Port Arthur stevedoring firm of P. C. Pfeiffer, and it was estimated all of the lumber would be on barges early this afternoon.

Dynamite as Last Resort

Dynamiting the wreck of the Isonzo as a way of getting the canal channel opened was heard talked in local marine circles. This probably would come only as a last resort, after complete abandonment of the ship by the owners and representatives, or through a suitable agreement with the insurance underwriters, which it is dubious could be secured in the near future, shipping men said. Belief also was expressed here that the efforts to right the Isonzo by lifting the deck cargo would prove futile.

Four tankers scheduled to load out cargoes at the Pure Oil company's Smiths Bluff terminals, are being held at Sabine until the canal is cleared, these vessels being the W. E. Hutton, Wyneric, Solano and J. N. Pew. The cargo ship Jeff Davis, destined for Beaumont, also is held at Sabine, and the U. S. S. Braos, naval tanker, is waiting outside the bar until the canal's opened. At Beaumont four loaded ships, the Italian tanker Capena, the British tanker Arcado, the Transmarine corporation cargo ship Suscalanco and the Atlantic Refining company's tanker Bahira, all are unable to sail because of the naval blockade above the locks.

Delay Costs $50,000 Daily

Estimating the average cost of delay to these ships at $2,000 to each, daily, the aggregate cost resulting from the canal blockade is already over $50,000, Port Arthur shipping men said. The cost per day to the ships is based upon the fuel consumption, crews' wages, loss of time from voyages and other operating expenses which are borne by ships in port, it is pointed out.

The first ships known to have been diverted into Port Arthur to load cargo which had been assembled for them at Beaumont are the steamship Lake Florian, operated by Porto Rico and the West Indies by Lykes Brothers; and the Norwegian steamship S. D. Lund, which arrived today from New Orleans to load out miscellaneous cargo for Mexico. The Lake Florian is taking lumber, rice, sugar and other cargo at the Mexican docks, and the Lund is loading out at the Texas Company terminals, it is reported.

Although the end of the canal blockade is not in sight today, plans are being made for expediting the movement of ships tied up in river ports and other vessels waiting below to get to up-river terminals. It was learned. Anticipating a rush movement of the loaded ships to get to sea, steps are being taken to have the laden ships drop down and anchored at the mouth of the Neches river, and the light, incoming ships brought into the canal and anchored at the locks just before the wrecked Isonzo is cleared out of the channel. When the channel is all clear, it is planned to have the light ships get under way first, passing the loaded vessels at the river mouth, about a mile above the wreck, according to plans discussed in Port Arthur today. Only about half an hour's delay would result from carrying out this plan, it is estimated.

BEAUMONT, Texas, Sept. 19.—"It is not my intention to have a grand jury for the coming term," Judge J. D. Campbell declared here this morning. Dr. Frank Crane's Editorials

THE CREED FOR BUSINESS MEN

At the meeting of the advertising men from all over the world, held sometime ago in London, a "Personal Creed for Business Men" was adopted.

It seemed to express the obligations to be assumed by all attending members of the various clubs.

It is not a bad sort of a creed to be adopted by business men everywhere. It is one indication that business is getting out of the region of mere sharp practice and is becoming a profession, in which those engaged in it are conscious of their duties and responsibilities and anxious to discharge them. The Association of Advertisers declared:

"1. To believe that the peace and happiness of mankind lie in some form of international concert, and that a great force in promoting human brotherhood is to be found in advertising, the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World acclaim and publish the following code of ethics for all those engaged in the business of advertising. We pledge ourselves:

"1. To dedicate our efforts to the cause of better business and social service.

"2. To seek the truth and to live it.

"3. To tell the advertising story simply and without exaggeration, and to avoid even the tendency to mislead.

"4. To refrain from unfair and competitive criticism.

"5. To promote better international understanding based upon a recognition of our mutual responsibilities and our interdependence.

"6. To conserve for ourselves and for posterity, ideals of conduct and standards of advertising practice born of the belief that truthful advertising builds both character and good business.

This is in line with the general keynote of the convention which was, "Truth in Advertising."

It was based upon the appreciation of the fact that no business can continue to thrive which is not based upon verity and that all shady dealing and unfairness is unprofitable in the long run, and that every principle of conduct, except honesty, and uprightness, eventually defeats itself.

WOULD 'NO TAX' BOND PLAN FOR MORE ROADS BE SAFE SCHEME?

The committee of 15, designated Saturday to complete a first hand survey of Jefferson county road needs, will have such a big job ahead of them that it seems a pity to saddle them with another.

Yet The News ventures to suggest that the committee of 15, availing itself of legal talent already offering itself in service to them, dedicate a part of its efforts to determining the merits of the million dollar "no tax" bond issue plan advanced as a practical solution of ways and means to increase the county's road facilities without imposing on the taxpayers an additional burden.

On the face of it the plan sounds paradoxical, offering something for nothing. But as explained to the meeting of justice precinct delegates, it had an apparently feasible argument.

In simple terms it embodies setting aside enough of the present road and bridge tax to meet the interest and sinking fund spread over a period of 30 years. Under that arrangement only a majority vote would be needed to pass the bond issue. A new taxation issue would need a two-thirds vote to become enactive.

It is argued that since the state has relieved the county of upkeep on a certain road mileage, the present 30-cent road and bridge tax is more than ample to meet such demands and that an 8 1-2 cent margin could be devoted to immediate needs by placing it against 30 years of future revenues.

The theory sounds a little Utopian, but it is not our intent to make light of it. If it will work, it is just what we have been needing for a long time. Any proposal that will secure improvements without an additional tax burden is such a revolutionary change over the usual method as to demand immediate attention.

Merits or demerits of the proposal should be sounded exhaustively, with these facts in mind:

Is it possible that future legislation would leave Jefferson county high and dry at some future period within the 30-year term by limiting state aid and making it necessary to refund the million dollar issue in a taxation bond issue?

Are we assured beyond doubt—not reasonable doubt, but certainly and without a comeback—that diversion of the maintenance revenue for a period of 30 years would not imperil emergency and normal upkeep of the system of roadwork it would create?

If drainage relief is handled as a problem integral with that of roads, what means would there be available to handle this high maintenance cost?

Jefferson county would not better itself a whit if by meeting an immediate problem it ran pell-mell into a greater one a few years from now.

Depreciation of roads is a big financial item. It doesn't take long for a neglected road to reach the same status it held before it was built. There may come a time when, if safety of the original fund is withdrawn, that it will cost as much or nearly as much to repair a road as its first cost. That would be a costly extravagance.

These questions are not introduced as arguments against or to voice opposition to the no-tax plan. But they are contingencies which present themselves as demanding assurances that the conditions can not occur. And for that reason The News believes that an exhaustive investigation into the no-tax plan should be made to prove its practicability or impracticability and an explanation follow which can be readily understandable by every citizen in Jefferson county.

TAMMEN AND HIS MONEY

Harry H. Tammen, one of the owners of the Denver Post, died not long since. His will was admitted to probate the other day and then it was disclosed that he had bequeathed one million dollars to the Denver Children's Hospital. He began life a waiter in a cheap cafe in Kansas City. He was a bartender before he invaded Denver.

He accumulated a fortune as a newspaper publisher. His enemies said that he would use the sandbag where the money bag failed. His fortune was large. He divided $100,000 among employees who had been faithful but the bulk of his fortune goes to a hospital for crippled children. Tammen wasn't a churchman. He wasn't a shining light of society. He had his own code.

He owned a circus. From his boyhood until the grave caught him Tammen was an entertainer. He loved to be looked upon as the Loud Noise by the mob who loved noisy things, noisy men, noisy shows, noisy exhibitions—noise, noise, noise.

Tammen and his newspaper were in on the Fall expose. They were before the expose came and then they quit. They had some dealings with Harry Sinclair and his Teapot Dome concessions and on the witness stand, when the Senate investigating was on, Tammen and his associates told the reason why.

He is dead. He gave a million to his widow, a million to the crippled children of Colorado and a hundred thousand to faithful employees. He had a dollar in his pocket when he was seventeen and when death came to him his pile had increased until it resembled a mountain crag.

His code and his nerve made him rich but the code of Tammen is not the code that governs the real newspaper publisher of today.

ANALYZE THE MONEY SPENT FOR SALARIES AND WAGES

The salaries and wages account should be divided for detailed analysis.

Approved systems of accounting for retail stores divide the important account of salaries and wages. As this item of expense is the largest and is usually more than equal to the sum of all other expenses, it is important that it be very carefully watched. Savings can be made only if waste is definitely located.

The division is made according to the duties of the employees. Selling, which cares for the wages of the salesforce, is the largest division. The other divisions usually found are Delivery, Buying, Management and Office. Small concerns group these, while stores find it advantageous to make still further divisions. CHAPTER I

A Client for Paul Harley

Some of Paul Harley's most interesting cases were brought to his notice in an almost accidental way. Although he closed his office in Chancery Lane sharply at the hour of six, that hour by no means marked the end of his business day.

One summer's evening when the little clock upon his table was rapidly approaching the much-desired hour, Harley lay back in his chair and stared meditatively across his private office in the direction of a large and very handsome Burmese cabinet.

Harley's office was part of an old city residence, and his chambers adjoined his workroom, so that now, noting that his tall clock registered the hour of six, he pressed a bell which summoned Innes, his confidential secretary.

"Well, Innes," said Harley, looking around, "another uneventful day."

"Well," replied Innes, laying a card upon the table, "I was just coming in with it when you rang."

Paul Harley glanced at the card. "Sir Charles Abington," he read aloud, staring reflectively at his secretary. "That is the osteologist?"

"Yes," answered Innes, "but I fancy he has retired from practice."

"Ah," murmured Harley, "I wonder what he wants. I suppose I had better see him, as I fancy that he and I met casually some years ago in India. Ask him to come in, will you?"

Innes retiring, there presently entered a distinguished-looking, elderly gentleman, in whose florid face rested an expression not unlike that of embarrassment.

"Mr. Harley," he began, "I feel somewhat ill at ease in addressing you on your time, for I am by no means sure that my case comes within your particular province."

"Sit down, Sir Charles," said Harley with quiet geniality. "Officially, my working day is ended; but if nothing comes of your visit beyond a chat it will have been very welcome. Calcutta, was it not, where we last met?"

"It was," replied Sir Charles, placing his hat and cane upon the table and sitting down rather wearily in a big leather armchair which Harley had pushed forward.

Sir Charles evidently was oppressed by some secret trouble, thus Harley mused silently, as, taking out a tin of tobacco from a cabinet beside him, he began in leisurely manner to load a briar.

Sir Charles slowly nodded his head, and seemed in some measure to recover confidence.

"Briefly, then," he said, "I believe my life is in danger."

"H'm," said Harley, replacing the tin in the cupboard and striking a match.

"You are naturally anxious for the particulars," Sir Charles presently resumed. "They bear, I regret to say, a close resemblance to the symptoms of a well-known form of hallucination."

"Surveillance," said Paul Harley. "You mean that you are more or less constantly followed?"

"I do."
"Anything else?"
"One very notable thing, Mr. Harley. I was actually assaulted less than a week ago within sight of my own house."

"Indeed! Tell me of this," Paul Harley became aware of an awakening curiosity.

"I had been to visit a friend in the neighborhood," Sir Charles continued, "when I was at present attending professionally, although I am actually retired. I was returning across the square, close to midnight, when, fortunately for myself, I detected the sound of light, pattering footsteps immediately behind me. I turned in the very instant that a man was about to spring upon me from behind. He was holding in his hand what looked like a large silk handkerchief."

"What did you do?"
"I turned and struck out with my stick."

"And then?"
"Then he made no attempt to contest the issue, but simply ran swiftly off, always keeping in the shadows of the trees."

"H'm," mused Harley. "A very alarming occurrence, Sir Charles. It must have shaken you very badly. But as you must overlook the possibility that this may have been an ordinary footpad."

"His methods were scarcely those of a footpad," murmured Sir Charles. "I quite agree," said Harley. "They were rather Oriental, if I may say so."

Sir Charles Abington started. "Oriental?" he whispered. "Yes, you are right."

"Does this suggest a train of thought?" prompted Harley.
Sir Charles Abington cleared his throat nervously. "It does, Mr. Harley," he admitted, "but a very confusing train of thought. It leads me to a point which I must mention, but which concerns a very well-known man. Before I proceed I should like to make it clear that I do not believe for a moment that he is responsible for this unpleasant business."

"Of course, Sir Charles," he said, presently, "your statement is very interesting and curious, and I shall naturally make a point of going fully into the matter. But before proceeding further there are two questions I should like to ask you. The first is this: What is the name of the 'well-known' man to whom you refer? And the second: If not being then whom do you suspect of being behind all this?"

Sir Charles' perplexity and embarrassment grew more and more markedly. "The matter is so hopelessly involved in the other," he finally replied, "that although I came here prepared as I thought with a full statement of the case, I should welcome a further opportunity of rearranging the facts before imparting them to you. One thing, however, I have omitted to mention. It is, perhaps, of paramount importance. There was a robbery at my house less than a week ago."

"What? A robbery! Tell me what was stolen?"

"Nothing of the slightest value, Mr. Harley, to any one but myself—or so I should have supposed." The speaker coughed nervously. "The thief had gained admittance to my private study, where there are several cases of Oriental jewelry and a number of pieces of valuable gold and silverware, all antique. At what hour he came, how he gained admittance, and how he acted, I cannot imagine. All the doors were locked as usual in the morning and nothing was disturbed."

"I don't understand, then."

"I chanced to have occasion to open my bureau, which I invariably keep locked. Immediately—I immediately—I perceived that my papers were disarranged. Close examination revealed the fact that a short manuscript in my own hand, which had been placed in one of the pigeonholes, was missing."

"A manuscript," murmured Harley. "Upon a technical subject?"

"Scarcely a technical subject, Mr. Harley. It was a brief account which I had vaguely contemplated publishing in one of the reviews, a brief account of a very extraordinary patient whom I once attended."

"And had you written it recently?"

"No; some years ago. But I had recently added to it. I may say that it was my purpose still further to add to it, and with this object I had actually unlocked the bureau."

"New facts respecting this patient had come into your possession?"

"They had."

"May I suggest that your patient and the 'well-known' man to whom you referred are one and the same?"

"It is not so, Mr. Harley," returned Sir Charles in a tired voice. "Nothing so simple. I realize more than ever that I must arrange my facts in some sort of historical order. Therefore I ask you again: will you dine with me tonight?"

"With pleasure," replied Harley, promptly. "I have no other engagement."

CHAPTER II
The Sixth Sense

Paul Harley stepped into his car in Chancery Lane. "Drive in the direction of Hyde Park Corner," he directed the chauffeur. "Go along the Strand."

Glancing neither right nor left, he entered the car, and presently they were proceeding slowly with the stream of traffic in the Strand. "Pull up at the Savoy," he said suddenly through the tube.

The car slowed down in that little bay which contains the entrance to the hotel, and Harley stepped firstly out of the rear window, observing the occupants of all other cars

Charming Hats Fashioned To Fit Into Any Occasion Or Enhance Any Costume

A HAT is the stamp of smartness on any costume. A woman may be gowned in a Parisian creation, shod in the most expensive shoes that the shop can produce, gloved to exquisite perfection; but if her hat is a shade too wide or narrow, if its perky feather has been subdued by dampness, if it all but hides the eyes when it should frame the face, the effect of a beautiful costume is utterly spoiled.

Speaking broadly, women own more hats than any other article of dress. There is something about a chic chapeau that wraps itself about a woman's heart and cries, "take me home." And unless she is fashion deaf or past the age of personal vanity, she'll succumb and be richer by one more. Hats are much more practical now than they used to be a few years back.

One can afford to be fashion-defiant these days and bear the cry of only one hat to be taken home, because the milliners are fashioning charming hats that can fit into almost any occasion and be worthy of properly computing any costume.

Even the French milliners, noted in the fashion world for their extravagance and ultra-smartness, are showing a little after that is modest in material, conservative in shape, severe in trimming.

Crowns seem higher, too, this fall, and stiffer, although two shown are soft and fairly low. Feathers of some kind or other are the preferred ornament but no particular preference is shown for their placement.

The shapes of the hats themselves are extremely simple, becoming to almost any contour.

For the girl with a leaning toward tailored clothes is a severe, almost mannish shape, whose brim stands away from the face and rolls slightly. The material is very fine, silky felt, at times. The high crown rears up like the beginnings of a man's "stovepipe" opera hat, but steps short at the most becoming point. A long, slender wing set slightly off center adds height and a great deal of evenness to an effect already out of the ordinary.

Felt seems to be a popular medium for the new fall hats. Whatever a woman's personal preference is, she must admit the practicalness and durability of felt. Felt is good all the year around and when the purchasing power of one's pocketbook is curtailed the same hat may ride over from one season to the next.

Soft crowns come in for their share of fashion's favor in another hat of felt.

Color offers no problem in the fall hats. The uniform color of the felt shapes being black. Silky felt or brushed beaver is best in black, after all, as it makes the most of the soft gleam and sheen. Quills and feathers are depended upon to give the brilliant touches desirable to a woman of smart tastes. A red quill may match a red girdle on a dress, or the notes of a parrot's gorgeous coloring may be repeated in an insert of silk. Fashion decrees that a costume should be a color unit, with at least a hint of the same colors on both hat and gown.

My Skin

Is due to a super-clay

By Edna Wallace Hopper

After 40 years in the limelight—after 35 years as a stage star—I still look a girl of 19. The thousands who see me daily know that, and wonder how this came about.

The chief reason lies in a new-type clay. I started years ago with the old-type clays, crude and muddy, which so many still employ. They brought me amazing results. But I have kept in touch with scientific progress, and in 20 years it has brought me a clay which gives multiplied results.

Today I have what experts call the last word in facial clay. It is white, refined and dainty. And it embodies many new discoveries. Until I obtained this, I never knew one-tenth what clay could do.

Now I am supplying this clay to others. I call it my White Youth Clay. All druggists and toilet counters have it—exactly the clay I use. And I am stating its results to girls who want more beauty and to women who want youth.

My White Youth Clay purges the skin of all that clogs and mars it. It draws out the causes of blackheads and blemishes. It brings the blood to the skin to nourish and revive it. The result is a rosy afterglow which amazes and delights. Many women seem to drop ten years with one application.

It firms the skin, combats all lines and wrinkles, reduces enlarged pores. No girl or woman who once enjoys its results will ever go without it.

I want you to know what it does. My good fortune obtained it for me. I was famous as a beauty, so every expert sought to give me the greatest aids to beauty. Now I wish to bring the benefits to millions.

Write me for my Beauty Book and I'll send with it something else to please you. Edna Wallace Hopper, 536 Lehigh Ave., Chicago, Ill.

BOOMS TICKET AGENTS FOR PUBLIC SPEAKERS

DALLAS, Sept. 19.—Candidates for office who weary of continuous speech-making and other discomforts attending the search for public office should take the advice of Paul Junkin district passenger agent of Texas and Pacific railroad here, and employ ticket agents.

"You often hear of the almost complete exhaustion of some candidate after a long speech," Junkin said.

"But take a look at the line of ticket agents in railroad row here. They are on their feet talking throughout the day and they get fat on it. The heat doesn't bother them and they would be poison to 'hecklers,' for they develop a keen wit in answering queries of travelers that flow by their stands," Junkin said.

"There is no question about it. As of these ticket men in Railroad row would go great in a hot campaign," he added.

LETTER FROM ANNETTE ANDERSON TO MRS. JOHN ALDEN PRESCOTT, CONTINUED

I was perfectly aghast, my dear Mrs. Prescott, when Miss Bradford told me she was sure you would feel very kindly to any one who would discover that secret drawer. I knew you left hurriedly, and of course I do not know how many private papers you have left in that desk. But when I tried to remonstrate—and I did rather heatedly—Miss Bradford interposed by saying:

"I'm sure, 'Nurse' (she always calls me 'Nurse' when she wants to be particularly disagreeable), 'that Mrs. Prescott, Junior will be as glad to have the secret drawer in her desk found, as she will be to have her rooms put in complete order without any worry to herself. I'm certain that it has not had a thorough cleaning and careful going over since she moved in the apartment.'"

"When I saw the condition of her closet which we are cleaning today and which has presumably been used daily and therefore more apt to be in order than other rooms less used, I know that if I were Mrs. Prescott and through my devotion to society and my friends had left my place in such a way, I would be very glad and thank my husband's mother very much for putting the entire place to rights."

This bit of righteous pretention on her part led to a discussion, in which I was completely ignored, of the dresses and wraps and other things which were found in your closet and bedroom bureau. The probable cost of all this paraphernalia seemed to worry them very much. Miss Bradford made your mother-in-law think you were culpably extravagant.

Perhaps, my dear Mrs. Prescott, I should not tell you all this, but I know how infuriated I would be to have a perfect stranger go through my small possessions when I was not by, so I determined to write you, that you might better understand why I am leaving Mrs. Prescott Senior in two weeks, even if you do not return.

Unless you are willing that meddling old maid should go through your entire house in the hopes of making you out an unprofitable wife, you would do well to wire me, or better still, wire your friend Mrs. Burke to look up the whole place and forbid them admittance.

I want you to understand, my dear Mrs. Prescott, that before Miss Bradford came I was delighted with the place. I enjoyed your husband and yourself and little son immensely and although your mother-in-law was at times exigent, she seemed to be

REGISTRATION WORRIES VOTERS

Intricate System Discourages American Populace

The prevailing American system of personal registration of voters on set days before each important election increases the difficulty of voting and discourages thousands of voters, according to a writer in the current issue of the National Municipal Review, New York. The requirement that each voter must appear at the polling places on one of three or four specific days before election and register with the precinct board has been considered the principal check against fraud and repeating which has yet been devised. But less than 50 per cent of the eligible voters cast ballots at the last presidential election. Indeed, the percentage of voters has been decreasing since 1896. If a person is absent or ill on the days of registration it is impossible for him to vote, and the trouble involved in registering undoubtedly forms a principal deterrent to voting.

According to the National Municipal Review, Minneapolis has adopted permanent and continuous registration. With the exception of Sundays and holidays, and the fifteen days prior to election, a citizen of Minneapolis at any time during the year has the opportunity to register by appearing at any of the several designated offices and enrolling his name. Such registration is semi-permanent, a voter's name being retained on the list unless he fails to vote during two successive years.

The first trial of this system in Minneapolis is said to have been satisfactory. The money-saving to the city was great, the number who registered exceeded that of previous years, and clerical mistakes in the records were practically eliminated.

As far as known, it will be the biggest industrial athletic meet ever held and the first railroad athletic event of its size.

The association, which is sponsored by the New York Central lines, now has a membership of more than 60,000, made up of employees in New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, and Illinois.

There will be about 300 contestants from about 50 cities in the system lines, including New York, Syracuse, Rochester, Buffalo, Erie, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Toledo, Detroit, Indianapolis, Cincinnati and Chicago.

The events include a 50-yard dash for women.

Venable has agreed to accept the position again as a member of the executive committee, and has returned to his place on that committee, which he had previously resigned. Menus For a Family

Breakfast—Grapes, steamed hominy with thin cream, toasted bran bread, quince honey, waffles, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—Corn a la Creole, stewed carrots, baked potatoes, rice pudding, whole wheat bread, butter, cocoa and tea.

Dinner—Broiled halibut steak, baked cauliflower, mashed sweet potatoes, celery and cabbage salad, compote of fruit, sponge cake, bread and butter, milk, coffee.

A good rule to keep in mind is that "no fried food should be given to a child under eight years." Of course, this means no waffles or breakfast.

Home-made jellies and jams are excellent food for small people and make up for the lack of father's pie in many instances. The pure juice of fruit has a tonic effect when combined with sugar in a jelly that is quite beneficial. A piece of bread and butter thinly spread with jelly often answers as dessert when one is less than 10.

Before preparing the cauliflower for baking remove enough for the younger members of the family. Mash with a fork and season with salt, butter and a tiny bit of paprika for a child under six years of age.

After one is four years old, hominy makes a change from breakfast cereal.

Steamed Hominny
One cup fine hominy, 1 1/2 teaspoons salt, 4 cups boiling water. Put salt in boiling water and slowly add hominy. Cook 10 minutes directly over the fire. Cook one hour or longer over hot water.

Quince Honey
Four large quinces, 3 pounds of sugar, 4 cups water.
Pare and grate fruit. Put water and fruit in preserving kettle and boil 10 minutes. Add sugar, stirring it in slowly and boil 20 minutes longer. Pour into sterilized cans and seal while hot.

Corn a la Creole
Six ears corn, 1 small onion, 2 green peppers, 3 tomatoes, 2 tablespoons of butter, salt and pepper.
Cut corn from cob. Mince onion. Remove seeds and white fiber from peppers and chop or shred peppers. Peel tomatoes and cut in quarters. Melt butter in frying pan, add vegetables and cook 20 minutes. Season with salt and pepper and serve on hot buttered toast.

This concoction is planned to please the grownup members of the family. The children should make their luncheon of baked potatoes, stewed carrots, whole wheat bread and butter, milk and rice pudding.

Rice Pudding
One-half cup rice, 4 cups milk, 1/2 cup sugar, 1 scant teaspoon salt, 1/2 nutmeg.
Wash rice through many waters. Cover with cold water and let stand over night. In the morning drain. Put milk in a buttered baking dish and add rice. The milk should be used cold. Put in a cool oven and bake an hour, stirring every 20 minutes.

Add sugar, salt and nutmeg grated and stir until sugar is dissolved. Bake in a slow oven two or more hours longer, stirring frequently to prevent the rice from settling to the bottom of the dish. As the steam forms over the top of the milk, loosen it and turn it into the body of the pudding.

When the pudding is done it should be of a creamy consistency, the rice and milk perfectly blended and smooth. More milk may be needed during the baking. It is stirred in cold.

Breakfast—Grapefruit, scrambled eggs on toast, bacon, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—Stuffed baked tomatoes, Graham bread and butter sandwiches, baked peaches, plain cookies, milk, tea.

Dinner—Pot roast of beef, mashed potatoes, baked squash, vegetable salad, frozen caramel junket, milk.

PANTHER CITY AWARDED CUP

Health Trophy Goes To Peter Smith School

The Texas Public Health association each year awards a silver loving cup to the school room that performs the highest average number of health scores. The awarding committee, composed of Dr. Malone Dugan, state health officer, Mrs. S. M. N. Marrs, president of the Texas congress of mothers and parent teachers association, and Mr. L. T. Belmont, dean of the college of physical activities, University of Texas, announced today that Miss Jessie Ramsower's room, Peter Smith school, Fort Worth was this year's winner.

During the past school year 35 school rooms in the state of Texas have won state and national penance in the Modern health crusade. These latter awards have been won by Texas school children in competition with other schools throughout the United States.

The Modern health crusade has proved to be one of the most popular methods of teaching health to children. Under it children do the duties explained in hygiene and physiology but too often left undone. The results of the Crusade work are physical and moral improvement and better attendance and deportment at school. In the past three years over seventy-five thousand Texas school children have been taught health habits by this method.

AT THE CAMEO
"The Fool's Awakening," now at the Cameo theater is a delightful drama, with beautiful backgrounds and a splendid cast. It tells the story of a man who took another man's name to win success and the girl and was then discovered.

Harrison Ford plays John Briggs, whose long association with the Huston makes his impersonation of Al-Exis Triona possible, and Enid Bennett, the girl who comes into a fortune—Olivia Gale, whom he marries Mary Alden in Myra, the companion who tries to shield Olivia from the unexpected results of her sudden wealth, for which her inexperience has not prepared her. They are ably assisted by a well chosen cast.

The picture shows the danger in living a lie, once started. Not that the film attempts to point out any moral, but it simply lays the story before you of one man who did try to live another man's life and his success. This excellent plot basis provides a wonderful opportunity for human and convincing characterizations, and the members of the cast have taken full advantage of their chance. Beauty, romance, drama and thrills are all here, ready for the spectator to enjoy.

"WANDERER OF THE WASTE-LAND"
Fireworks in the hands of a tribe of Comchilla Indians can precipitate as much confusion as firewater.

So testifies Irvin Willat, who directed Zane Grey's "Wanderer of the Wasteland," at the Peoples now.

"We arrived at Mecca," related Willat, "after ten o'clock at night. Besides Jack Holt, Noah Beery, Kathryn Williams and Billie Dove, we had two Indians in our party. They were White Eagle and Yowlache, studio bit players.

"And somehow an entire tribe of Comchilla Indians living near Mecca, heard of our coming. They met us at the station several hundred strong. That was all fine, except that a bright mind among the tribe found several dozen railroad flares and lit them in our honor.

"Soon all sleeping Mecca was awake. The crimson glory of the flares brought out the fire department. Of course, all that department members found was our company. And it was three o'clock in the morning, before Mecca would permit itself to turn away from the 'actors,' and return to bed."

Books attacked a black cat in a tree at Brighton, England, and knocked the animal 50 feet to the ground.

"CATS," GERMAN POLICE DOG AWARDED PRIZES
RT Sept. 19.—Be sides wearing the crown of the Texas loop, the Fort Worth Panther have the satisfaction of possessing a near champion mascot.

GULF TANKER ARRIVES HERE

Four Vessels Docked At Texaco Plant

After taking part cargo of Baytown, the Gulf company tanker Gulfcoast arrived in port this morning to complete her cargo here before sailing for Providence, her sailing being scheduled for late this afternoon. Other arrivals at the Gulf company docks include the Gulfcoast, which is expected to make port late today from Jacksonville.

Four vessels docked at the Texas Company terminals to take on cargo today, included among which are the Lake Florian from the West Indies, the steamship Harvester from Providence, the tanker Occidental from Jacksonville, and the S. B. Lund from New Orleans.

Arriving at Sabine this morning and awaiting orders to proceed to Smith's Bluff are the tankers W. E. Hutton and Solano, both of which are bound for Smith's Bluff to take on cargo. The Solano is owned by Sydney C. Collin company. The tanker Italian motorship Isouza is still impeding traffic to Orange, Port Neches, Beaumont, Smith's Bluff and other points up the channel.

The blocking of the channel has not disturbed Port Arthur shipping, but shipping for other parts of Sabine district with the exception of Sabine is at a standstill and from present indications will be so for several days until the sunken ship is removed from the channel. Four ships are bottled up at Beaumont, ready to sail, but unable to make the sea, and with the arrival of the W. E. Hutton and the Solano, at Sabine, a total of six ships are now lying at that point for up the river ports.

Wheeler Stumps Way Through Enemy Land

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Sept. 19.—Senator Burton K. Wheeler stumped his way through the enemy country today unscathed.

Without any apparent opposition, the independent vice presidential candidate carried his attack upon "the Daugherty system" and the "Ohio gang" to the home of the former attorney general.

Wheeler's announced fear that he might be intimidated by court action here failed to materialize.

Coolidge Questions Effect of Aircraft On Ships

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—Secretary of the Navy Wilbur, summoned back to his desk from California by President Coolidge, was expected to arrive late today to face one of the most important tasks ever imposed upon a navy secretary.

The president has made it known that he seriously doubts the advisability of spending money on naval equipment until a thorough study has been made by experts of the effect aircraft will have on future naval operations.

Upon Wilbur falls the duty of supervising the study and its result probably will determine the fate of the American navy.

MOUNT SHASTA MUD THREATENS

DUNSMIR, Cal., Sept. 19.—The great slide which roared down the southeastern slope of Mount Shasta, breaking down the walls of Mud canyon for a distance of eight miles, has formed a great lake of mud which may burst its barriers and flood the lowlands at any moment, according to word received here today.

Fifteen acres of volcanic sand slipped from near the top of the peak and blocked the only natural channel by which the mud from the disintegrating glacier has been reaching the bottom of the mountain. An aura of pumice dust which accompanied the slide could be seen for 25 miles and the roar could be heard at great distance.

CAT BROUGHT LUCK: MEN WANT IT BACK

HENDERSON, Sept. 19.—"Any body seen our kitty?"

Henderson cotton men have sent the call broadcast over the state. Several days ago the Henderson cotton exchange was opened and a long, lanky cat insisted on making itself at home in the office. A feast was set before the cat and straightaway the price of cotton climbed.

Then the cat went on a nocturnal spree and with its disappearance the cotton market dropped. Royal feasts have been spread in the office. Silent entreaties have been made but the wanderer won't return.

BAPTIST CHURCH OPENS SUNDAY

Formal Christening of Building Lasts Thru Wednesday

The formal opening of the new meeting house of the Central Baptist church at their new location corner of Ninth and DeQueen boulevard, will be held Sunday, September 21 with a continued program through Wednesday night.

The formal dirt-breaking service was held on July 18 with actual construction work beginning July 21. The corner stone with appropriate service was laid August 19. The building is completed now with only a little carpenter work yet remaining, together with the making of the seats.

Is An Annex

The building is more properly a Sunday School annex located near the rear of the lots with a view to building a more pretentious church auditorium on the front. The present building is two-story with a large balcony around three sides, the upper story and balcony seating about 500. The first floor is to be occupied by the Primary and Beginners' departments, while the rest of the school will use the remainder of the building, together with a small residence that will be equipped for the T. E. L. class of women. The lots have been filled in and graded with 240 feet of sidewalks around.

The Central Baptist church was organized in 1912 and has had a struggling history, but now ranks among the best and most progressive within the association. Its membership is 275 with a Sunday school attendance surpassing that number. T. E. Kennedy began the present pastorate in January, 1923, during which time there has been nearly 200 additions to the church.

A cordial invitation is extended by

Imogene Not Going

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—Imogene Wilson today denied having any intention of sailing to Europe to rejoin her old sparring partner, Frank Tinney.

Imogene had been reported as a prospective passenger aboard the Columbus tomorrow.

SUGGESTS DONKEY BE USED AS A ZEBRA

FORT WORTH, Sept. 19.—Eight hundred dollars is too much for another zebra when we have the makin's suggested George C. Clark, park superintendent. What's the matter with peroxidizing our donkeys?

Fort Worth lost their zebra specimen, Bettie, some few months ago, and since that time Forest Park Zoo has had to do without any representation of the striped equine.

Our women use peroxide, so why should the donkey object, argues the genial park head.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

No. 14—THE TWINS MAKE A VISIT

They all talked it over and over.

"The very idea," said Mister Snip Snap. "The very idea of Mrs. Cottontail saying that the shoes she bought for Cutie Cottontail were no good!"

"It's very queer!" said Nick. "Because she said she wanted good shoes for him to wear to school, so I got her the nicest ones we had in the store with copper toes and everything."

"Something must be wrong," said Nancy.

"Well," said Mister Snip Snap thoughtfully, "I've heard of school being hard on heads sometimes, but it's the very first time in all my life that I've ever heard that it was hard on feet."

They all talked it over and talked it over, and at last it was decided that something was wrong, very much wrong indeed, with Cutie Cottontail's new shoes.

Why they should wear into holes in such a short time nobody could think.

"I tell you, Twins," said Mister Snip Snap. "You'll just have to go and visit the Meadow Grove School tomorrow and find out what makes Cutie Cottontail's shoes wear out."

So bright and early when the clock struck nine and Mister Scribble Scratch, the fairy schoolmaster, had finished calling the roll, Nancy and Nick arrived at the school in the woods and said they had come to visit.

"That's very nice," said Mister Scribble Scratch. "Sit right here and you can see everything. Make yourselves at home."

He set out two chairs and the Twins thanked him and sat down. They saw Cutie Cottontail first thing in the first seat in the third row in front of the teacher's desk. They could see his shoes, too, and just as Mrs. Cottontail had said, they were certainly worn out.

"First we'll have spelling," said Mister Scribble Scratch, the fairy schoolmaster. "Put your headings on your slates, boys and girls."

All the little woods children began to write at once. Scamper Squirrel made his tongue go as fast as his legs and Cobby Coon made his eyes go up and down, and Cutie Cottontail wriggled his ears, but nobody moved his feet scarcely during the whole lesson. And Mister Scribble Scratch called out ten words to write.

No! Spelling wasn't hard on shoes. That couldn't be the trouble at all! It must be something else.

"We'll now have arithmetic," said Mister Scribble Scratch, putting five problems on the blackboard.

Slate pencils started to scratch again like rusty door hinges and such counting up as there was on fingers! But nobody used his feet much, so the Twins decided that it wasn't the number work that was wearing out Cutie's shoes, either.

Next they had reading, and everybody got a turn. Cutie read a line like this: "Cheer up, cheer up," said Mrs. Robin, "cherries are ripe!"

But all he did was to stand up and sit down again after he was through. Reading wasn't hard on shoes, either.

Then they sang a song and marched around the room once. But that couldn't hurt a pair of shoes any more than a fly could wear out a window pane.

It was still a mystery how Cutie Cottontail's shoes could be worn out so dreadfully after only three days of school.

CHILD'S STORY OF THE HUMAN RACE

THE FIRST TRIP "AROUND THE WORLD"

Part III—Brazil, Canibals, and Winter Quarters

South America, the fleet anchored off the mouth of the Plata river. The people of that region were supposed to be canibals. They ran when they saw the white men coming.

The next stop was at two islands, which swarmed with penguins, queer-looking birds which cannot fly. (They dive for fish for a living). The penguins divided interest with seals which swam and jumped and barked in the cool sea water.

The weather had become very cold, and a good harbor had to be found "for the winter." Such a harbor was located within a few hundred miles of the Southern tip of South America. The ships came to anchor, and many of the men went ashore.

Two months passed on and not a single native was seen! Then came a day when a man of huge size was spied on the beach. He was dancing up and down, singing, and throwing sand on his head. Magellan ordered one of his sailors to approach the savage, doing the same things as a sign of friendship. The sailor obeyed and was able to get close without giving fright.

In our next story we shall hear of the race to which this giant savage belonged.

rowboats putting off from the shores When they saw rowboats putting off from the sides of the ships, they told one another:

"Ah, the big boats are mothers! The little boats are their children!"

It was pleasant for Magellan to be in the midst of such friendly people, but before two weeks had passed, he gave the order to "sail on."

FEMALE MASHER MENACE DALLAS

Balloon Tired Flapper Scored by Mrs. Metcalf

DALLAS, Sept. 19.—"Female mashers riding on balloon tires" are a menace to the youth of Dallas, Mrs. Nellie Metcalf declared in appealing to police for greater protection against the "strens."

"Female mashers, who once strolled down the streets, now are riding balloon tires, making it extremely difficult for uniformed policemen to cope with the situation," Mrs. Metcalf declared.

After delivering this, Mrs. Metcalf turned loose a broadside against the jellybeans and other specimens of the male family. "Once the men come drive alongside the curb and try to smile a woman into taking a ride with them. Now if the woman doesn't get by with the smile invitation, a crowd takes its place and the accosted woman is ordered gruffly to either get in or be pulled into the car," she declared.

Mrs. Metcalf suggested that women "cops" be added to the "force" to thin out the ambitious masculine mashers.

WALL STREET JOURNAL FINANCIAL REVIEW

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—Stocks continued to act impressively. Each expressed a selling mood around noon which bore all the earmarks of a concerted professional attack. Considerable impetus was given to constructive operations in special issues by the vigor with which the main body of stocks rebounded after the bear battle had spent its force.

Further substantial gains were scored by issues like American Tobacco, Air Reduction, Worthington Pump & Machinery, and other specialties, while the leading industrials displayed a confident tone through the afternoon.

GODBEY TALKS TO LIONS CLUB

Should 'Refine' Men, Minister Asserts

"Our aim should be not only to make money, but to refine men," said Rev. V. A. Godbey, minister of the First Baptist church, in a luncheon meeting today. Service through creative effort should be the aim of Port Arthur citizens, Rev. Godbey said, who pointed out the opportunity for service in "plastic Port Arthur," by saying that 19 languages are spoken here.

Miss Frances Carter told the Lions in a humorous recitation how "the white Sox got a run in."

A. L. Burge, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce and Shipping, present as a guest, told the club of the progress of the Port Arthur fair.

Most of the radium used in European hospitals comes from Belgium, Austria and the United States.
